H. Res. 308

In the House of Representatives, U.S.,

December 18, 2001.

- Whereas motivation and inspiration have played important roles in the greatest achievements of civilized society and are characteristics common to all great leaders;
- Whereas both children and adults need motivation and inspiration in order to achieve success and happiness in their lives;
- Whereas the inspiration to define goals at school, home, and work and the motivation to achieve those goals is critical to achieving success and happiness;
- Whereas all children and young adults need mentors to inspire them to achieve their goals and to motivate them to direct their energies toward positive and constructive activities and goals;
- Whereas adults who mentor children and young adults become inspired and motivated themselves;
- Whereas a renewed focus on motivation and inspiration is particularly important in the wake of the tragedies of September 11, 2001;
- Whereas the beginning of the year is often a time of reflection, planning, and goal setting;

Whereas the establishment of a National Motivation and Inspiration Day would provide an opportunity for the people of the United States to focus on the importance of maintaining motivation and inspiration in their lives; and

Whereas prominent citizens of Long Island, New York, are attempting to establish January 2 as National Motivation and Inspiration Day: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives supports the goals of a National Motivation and Inspiration Day.

Attest:

Clerk.
